Compiled by Cate Watson

Object no. [E2007.172.1]

The Pearson Archive

The Pearson firm was founded by Samuel Pearson as builders and contractors, at Bradford, Yorkshire in 1856.

It established its reputation in the 1880s under Weetman Pearson, later created the first Viscount Cowdray. Pearson's civil engineering works included the Sheffield main sewer, the docks at Halifax, Nova Scotia and the Empress Dock at Southampton. During the 1890s the firm became the largest contractor in the world. It constructed the Blackwall Tunnel, Dover Harbour, Sennar Dam on the Blue Nile and the reconstruction of the Tehuantepec Railway in Mexico amongst many other major engineering works.

The archive contains contracts, specifications, agreements, correspondence, reports, accounts, notebooks and photographs relating to the firm's civil engineering work throughout the world. They also include the first Lord Cowdray's working papers, personal correspondence and papers relating to the firm's subsidiary interests in publishing and aviation.

The records were deposited with the Science Museum Library & Archive by S. Pearson and Son Ltd. in 1972.
